Introduction

To be successful at any task, it is important to have the right tools and skills. Grammar is one of the basic tools of written and oral language. Students need to learn and practice key grammar skills to communicate effectively. The pages in this book provide opportunities to introduce grammar rules and concepts and/or expand students' familiarity with them.

Using This Book

If your class has grammar texts, you can duplicate the pages in this book to use as reinforcements.

⇒ Read aloud the instructions and examples as most of the material will be new to fourth graders. If necessary, provide additional examples and answer students' questions.

⇒ Model how to do the activity.

You can add these pages as assignments to your writing program and keep copies in skills folders at your writing resource center.

You may also want to use the activities as a class lesson or have students complete the pages in small groups.

You can use these suggestions to help students complete the activity pages.

Activity 1

Review what students know about subjects and predicates before introducing this page.

Activity 2

Remind students that most subjects are nouns; predicates usually begin with verbs. For Part B students should write the predicates in the same order as the sentences in Part A.

Activity 3

Point out as shown in the sample, that a complete subject might include an adjective and a noun marker, or article.

Activity 4

Explain that the simple predicate is part of the complete predicate.

Activity 5

Use the chart to introduce the terms for each kind of sentence. Students may already be familiar with the terms statement, question, command, and exclamation.

Activity 6

If necessary, review the characteristics of the four sentence types with students before assigning this page.

Activity 7

Suggest that students look for the words and, or, and but to help them identify compound sentences.

Activity 8

Explain that these conjunctions signal that a dependent clause is coming.

Activity 9

Run-on sentences are a common error in student writing. This page offers practice in identifying and correcting them.

Activity 10

Invite students to read aloud the sentences they wrote in Part C.

Activity 11

Remind students that nouns can be common or proper.

Activity 12

Challenge students to think of other categories of common and proper nouns to add to the chart. For example: street, school, lake, state, and a proper noun for each.

Activities 13–15

Review the terms singular and plural.

Activity 16

The placement of the apostrophe in possessives can be confusing to students. They may need additional practice.

Activity 17

Review what students already know about pronouns. Point out that the use of pronouns keeps texts from becoming monotonous. Demonstrate by reading aloud the example sentences substituting nouns for the pronouns.

Activity 18

The misuse of pronouns is a common mistake. Give examples of subject pronouns improperly used after action verbs such as “Mom gave Jane and I a ride” or the misuse of object pronouns as subjects such as “Her and I went home.”

Activity 19

Remind students that adjectives and adjective clauses modify nouns.

Activity 20

Invite volunteers to share some of the proper nouns they wrote in Part A.

Activity 21

If necessary, review what students know about predicates.

Activity 22

Noun-verb agreement can be difficult for students. You might do this page aloud with the class so that students can hear the correct usage and talk about why a verb is singular or plural in a sentence.

Activities 23 and 24

Review what students already know about verb tenses.

Activity 25

Introduce the term past participle when discussing the forms of a verb used with has or have.

Activities 26 and 27

Point out that forms of the verb to be are the most commonly used verbs in the English language.

Activities 28–31

These pages introduce examples of different helping verbs that students should master.

Activity 32

Invite volunteers to share how they completed the sentences in Part B.

Activity 33

Point out that adjectives don't always come before the word they modify, but often follow a form of the verb to be as in the second example.

Activity 34

Have students indicate which spelling rule they used for completing the items.

Activity 35

Review the terms comparative and superlative.

Activity 36

Encourage students to visualize how the order of adjectives affects the noun they are describing.

Activity 37

Review what students already know about adverbs.

Activities 38 and 39

Remind students that some adverbs form the comparative and superlative by adding more and most.

Activity 40

The words good and well are often misused. Help students understand that these words are different parts of speech and modify different kinds of words. Students may benefit from doing this page aloud as a class to hear the correct usage.

Activity 41

The use of double negatives is a common problem; students may benefit from doing this page aloud so they can hear the correct usage.

Activity 42

Tell students they can use an adjective from the boxes more than once when completing Part A.

Activity 43

Although they encounter prepositional phrases all the time, the term may be new to students. Explain that a preposition always begins a prepositional phrase. A prepositional phrase adds more detail or information to a sentence.

Activity 44

You might mention that pronouns used at the end of a prepositional phrase are the same as those used after action verbs (see Activity 18).

Activity 45

Point out that some prepositions have similar meanings and more than one can make sense in a given sentence. Invite students to suggest other prepositions that might work.

Activity 46

Point out that small words such as in and to are not capitalized unless they are the first word in a title. Before students begin Part B, remind them that names of people are capitalized.

Activity 47

Remind students that a comma is like a yellow traffic light for readers; it indicates a slight pause. When used in a series, commas help readers differentiate the items mentioned. Point out that a series must include at least three words or phrases.

Activity 48

In the first example, point out that the quotation has its own end punctuation—a period—and it comes before the quotation marks.

Activity 49

Review what students know about capitalizing the first word of a sentence and proper nouns. Also review end punctuation for a sentence and when the punctuation should fall within the quotation marks.

Activity 50

Review what students know about capitalizing the first word of a sentence and proper nouns. You may want to point out the initial in sentences 3 and 4. If necessary, mention that initials such as these end in a period.

Activity 51

Remind students that they're is a contraction for "they are." Have students consult the chart as they complete the exercises.

Activity 52

Encourage students to think carefully about the meaning of easily confused words. Learning the meaning of these words should help students know how to use them correctly.

Activities 53 and 54

Encourage students to find and use other words that begin with these prefixes or suffixes.

Activity 55

Invite students to share other words they may know that begin or end with the given prefixes and suffixes.

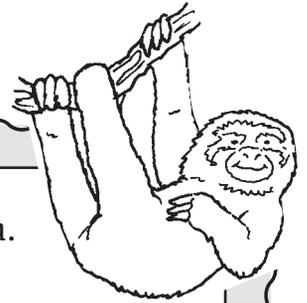

Connections to the Standards

With the goal of providing students nationwide with a quality education that prepares them for college and careers, broad standards were developed to establish rigorous educational expectations. These standards serve as the basis of many state standards. The chart below details how the activities in this book align with specific language and foundational skills standards for students in grade 4.

Sentences With Clauses

Some conjunctions begin sentence parts called dependent clauses.

Dependent Clause Conjunctions

while	although	when	where
because	since	after	before

Sentence: The Vikings sailed to many countries although they were not always welcome.

conjunction begins dependent clause

A dependent clause has a subject and a predicate, but it is not a sentence by itself.

Not a Sentence: Although they were not always welcome.

Circle the conjunction and underline the dependent clause in each sentence.

1. Viking chiefs got rich because they raided foreign lands.
2. Some Vikings buried their treasure after they stole it.
3. Vikings made their stories into poems since they were easier to remember that way.

B. Rewrite each sentence so that the underlined nouns are plural.

11. What brush do you need to paint the box?

12. The business must pay tax on earnings.

13. The walrus ate some peach.

More Plural Nouns

Most nouns have singular and plural forms.
Some plural forms have special spellings.

If a noun ends in a consonant and y, the y becomes i and -es is added.

city → cities

If a noun ends in f or fe, the f or fe becomes v and -es is added.

shelf → shelves life → lives

For certain nouns ending in a consonant and o,
-es is added.

hero → heroes

A. Write the plural form of each noun. Use a dictionary to check your work.

1. worry _____

6. leaf _____
